By BRUCE BLOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

Everyone at home hopes our field commanders know what they're talking about when they say the war is over in Korea.

The valiant American retreat down the peninsula and the game stand out soldiers have been making for weeks in their narrow bridgehead and the amphibious assaults at Inchon and other places stand out as bright chapters in U. S. military history. But inevitably they are deeply tinged with the grimness and bitterness that goes with being outmanned and outgunned.

The generals tell us in effect that we're starting a fresh page in a new chapter. But no one should imagine that it will make breezy, light-hearted reading.

No matter how confident our leaders may be of final victory, too-ready optimism over the quick collapse of the North Korean enemy seems ill-advised.

First of all, we don't know yet that the Russians who are directing the North Koreans will not continue to pour ample stocks of new and powerful weapons into the battle. If the Russians decide to do that, some of the equipment will get through despite the pounding that Allied flyers are giving North Korean transport.

We do know that the North Koreans have far from exhausted their available military manpower, even without drawing upon any Chinese Communist units. To be sure, these reserves undoubtedly would not throw some of their forces originally used by the North Koreans. But they might obstruct our path for considerable time.

Not can any American leader be confident that the Chinese Reds would not throw some of their battle-toughened divisions into the fray to prolong the conflict and keep the North Koreans from being rolled up beyond the 38th Parallel.

Apparently U. S. officials think this isn't going to happen. But they don't really know. And can't know until the American offensive develops and the Russians and Chinese are put to that test.

In other words, the most critical decisions the enemy must make—those which most seriously affect the duration of the war—have not yet been made or have not become evident. So it is foolish for us to talk glibly about crushing the opposition swiftly.

We do enjoy the advantage that might make for a fairly speedy North Korean defeat. Questioning of prisoners discloses that North Korean morale doesn't stand up well under reverses. Easy victories have long since stopped for them. They may lose the will to fight when the full weight of U. S. men and material is thrown at them.

But until a collapse in morale actually occurs, it's risky to count upon it. Right now it has to be classed as wishful thinking. We've got to assume, for our own safety, that the enemy will be as tough in defeat as he was in victory. We've got to expect the worst. If it doesn't happen that'll be our good luck.

Truman Gives Out Some 'Handy' Advice

President Truman has plenty of detractors in this country, but none of them contend he isn't a good politician. So when he hands out political advice, it probably ought to be accepted.

The other day he told Senator Benton, Connecticut Democrat that the way to get elected is to shake as many hands as possible. Mr. Truman suggested 25,000 hands as a nice round figure.

Who dares to say this formula is wrong? The President applied it in 1948, and earlier than that in his second senatorial fight back in 1940. Both times he won over tremendous odds.

Mr. Truman was talking to Benton, but the Republican opposition might well take note. Handshakes are usually fighting candidates, and the only way to defeat a fight is to fight back just as hard. Looks like an awful lot of hands are going to be wrung between now and November.

Scattered Plane Accidents Fatal to 37 Persons

By United Press
Thirty-seven persons were killed in three widely-separated plane crashes within 24 hours. The worst accident occurred off Kwajalein in the Marshall Islands where a four-engine navy transport plunged into 1,200 fathoms of water and killed all 26 navy personnel aboard.

Another navy craft crashed into Puget Sound yesterday, killing seven men. The plane, a four-engine patrol bomber, sank into 500 feet of water near Whidbey Island 50 miles north of Seattle.

Two men and two women were killed near Bland, Va., yesterday when their single-engine Beechcraft plane crashed into a field. The 26 dead in the Kwajalein crash included 19 passengers and seven crewmen. The plane went down just after it took off from the Kwajalein lagoon on a routine flight to the Far East. The plane exploded and burned briefly in the second before it sank.

A witness to the Puget Sound crash said the bomber was in a tight spin when he spotted it just before the ship hit the water. "It sank from sight almost immediately," he said.

The navy still was hunting for possible survivors but virtually all hope for the seven men was gone. The plane, attacked to patrol squadron 931 which was called up from reserve recently, was on a routine training flight from the Sand Point naval air station at Seattle.

Names of the dead in both naval plane crashes were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

State police said the private plane which crashed in Virginia was piloted by former Deputy Sheriff Lyman E. Sebree, 44, of DeKalb, Ill., who died en route to a hospital.

The plane smashed into a flat swampy field near Hollywood community. The other dead were identified as William Edgar Clark, 33, De Kalb; Margaret M. Longton, De Kalb; and Jeanette Barbara Acers of Vallejo, Calif.

Legion Honors Teams With Barbecue

The American Legion, Leslie Huddleston Post No. 12 held its first meeting of the year last night at Fair Park and had the following guest:

Dub Gladney, 12th Dist. Commander from Stamps, Miss Betty Roberts, the post Rodeo Queen elected to the Junior and Senior Legion Baseball Teams.

Barbecue supper was served to all. A committee to work toward establishment of Sons of American Legionnaire was formed with Ray Turner, Chairman W. H. Gunter, and Vincent Foster.

There was also a committee appointed to contact and take orders from the business establishment, for flags to be displayed on certain occasions.

AUSTIN EXAMINES CAPTURED RUSSIAN MACHINE GUN — At Lake Success during his reading of General MacArthur's report on Korean situation, American delegate Warren Austin displayed this Russian-made sub-machine gun, captured from North Koreans, to members of the United Nations Security Council. The gun was dated 1950, and MacArthur said Russians have been, and still are, supplying Red aggressors with the most modern Soviet weapons. (NEA Telephoto)

City Floats $60,000 Bond Issue

The City of Hope sold $60,000 in revenue bonds last night to the Union Planters National Bank and Trust Co. of Memphis bearing an interest rate of 2 1/2 percent.

The $60,000 will be used to enlarge and make improvements in the Municipal Water and Plant and its facilities. An ordinance calling for the bond issue was approved recently by the council.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Smith told the council of being shocked last July 25, in the 200 Block on S. Walnut, when they touched a "Hot" white-way post. The matter was referred to the Water and Light Committee to determine extent of alleged injuries.

The council was advised that the Gilbert electrical line will be installed as soon as possible. Lee Norton asked the council to install a line on the Blevins Highway. The matter was turned over to Clyde Zinn for investigation.

An ordinance to levy a tax of 5 mills on taxable property in the City of Hope was passed.

The council voted to let the Hempslead Book-mobile purchase gas and oil through the city pump at the fire station.

The Airport committee was authorized to work out a deal with B. L. Rettig for management of the port.

James H. Jones Named State Show Chairman

Little Rock, Sept. — James H. Jones, superintendent of Hope schools, has been named. Hempslead County Chairman of a committee arranging State wide school day at the forthcoming Arkansas Livestock Show and Rodeo, it was announced by Miss Ocie Blivins, President A. E. A.

The Arkansas Livestock together with the State Department of Education and the Arkansas Education Association this week launched a campaign to bring at least 50,000 Arkansas school children into Little Rock for State Wide School Day on Thursday, October 5.

Local Student Takes Honors at Philander College

Philander Smith College has released its honor roll of twenty-six students for the first semester of the 1950-51 school year. The list was compiled according to the scholastic averages for the second semester, 1949-50.

Benjamin Yeger, the son of Chester and Naomi Yeger, was one of the two who attained straight "A" averages. He was a graduate of Yeger High School in 1948 and a second honor student. Benjamin, who is a senior and plans to be a doctor, is taking a pre-med course. Last commencement he received a $300 scholarship because of his high average in science.

Marines Have to Stop, Don Shirts for the Waves

Kimpo Airfield, Korea, Sept. 20 — (P) — The cry of "women" flashed across Kimpo airfield today. Marines hastily combed their hair, donned shirts and ran to the Transport that had just landed.

Off stepped Wave Capt. Vera Brown of 8609 3rd Ave. north Birmingham, Ala., and Lt. John B. Bonham of Oklahoma City, Okla., to be greeted by whistles and wolf calls.

The girls blushed and smiled and told the marines "we're glad to be in Korea."

With the marines, the feeling was mutual.

House Passes Communist Measure

Washington, Sept. 20 —?— Disregarding the chance of a presidential veto, the house today passed a subversives control bill calling for peacetime registration of Communists and wartime internment of potential spies and saboteurs.

Agreeing to a senate-house compromise on conflicting versions of the bill, the house sent it back to the senate for expected speedy concurrence.

By completing congressional action at once, the senate could send the bill to the White House in time for President Truman to act on it before congress begins a hoped-for adjournment or recess this week-end.

Should President Truman decide to veto it, today's top-heavy vote made it almost certain that the house would override it by the necessary two-thirds vote.

The bill is one of three measures standing between congress and a vacation.

It will be followed by another senate-house compromise, a $17,000,000,000 defense appropriation measure. The major issue in this measure is a senate-voted ban against economic help to nations shipping arms or equipment to Russia or her friends.

The third "must" bill, boosting taxes by an estimated $5,000,000,000 a year, is slated for consideration tomorrow if senate-house versions have a compromise version ready.

The house votes first on all three bills, with the senate ready to follow suit in a hurry.

If the original house rollcall on the anti-subversive bill is a barometer, today's vote will be no contest. The house last month passing proof that a veto would vincible a somewhat similar bill by a 354 to 20 vote, or far more than the two-thirds needed to upset a veto. The same was true of the senate's 70 to 7 vote.

There is no assurance that Mr. Truman will veto the bill. In fact some house sources close to him think he will approve it, perhaps with a critical statement in time for congress to get away by the end of this week.

The compromise bill is a redraft of earlier versions which the President publicly objected to on the ground they would endanger the rights of loyal citizens.

Seven Killed as Bomber Plunges Into the Sea

Seattle, Sept. 20 — (P) — A four-engine navy privateer bomber spun dizzily downward from a 3,000-foot altitude and plunged into the waters of Puget Sound yesterday, killing all seven men aboard.

Identity of the seven was withheld pending notification of next of kin. The men were from a recently reactivated squadron 931, naval reserve flying out of Seattle.

Portions of the plane ripped off at 1,000 feet on its death dive. Rescue planes and crash boats sped to the scene, in mid-channel of Saratoga Passage near Whidbey Island. Only a debris-strewn oil slick was found. The waters are 250 feet deep at that point.

There were three pilots and four enlisted men aboard.

The plane was based at Seattle's Sand Point naval air station. The navy said it was on a routine training flight.

The Blue Ridge Parkway road when completed will link Shenandoah National Park in Virginia and Great Smoky Mountains National Park in North Carolina.

French Force Reds to Fall Back in Indo China; U. S. to Send Arms But No Troops

Saigon, Indo-China, Sept. 20 — (P) — French military sources said tonight aerial observers reported a general withdrawal of Communist-led Vietnamese troops out of the Dongkhe region and toward bases across Chinese Communist frontier.

The informants said the rebels pulled out of Dongkhe, which was reported captured yesterday. French columns are driving in the direction of the frontier out-post. French military spokesmen charge the Vietnamese attack on Dongkhe had been launched from Chinese bases.

A French communiqué said French artillery surprised a Vietnamese battalion and inflicted heavy losses. The communiqué reported calm in other sections of the frontier, despite earlier reports that the rebels were attacking Taikhe, 10 miles from Dongkhe, and Pakha, 125 miles to the west.

A security blanket covers French military operations.

There have been reports that the Communists destroyed the Dongkhe post before pulling out of it, but official word on the progress of French troops in the sector has been lacking, nor has there been anything official on the fate of the French Dongkhe garrison. An army communiqué said yesterday 200 French foreign Legionnaires defended the post, but informed sources said Indo-Chinese auxiliaries also manned it.

A French military spokesman said it was established that the Vietnamese troops which took Dongkhe made their assault from Chinese bases and with equipment furnished by the Peking government. He declared that Chinese Communist reinforcement of troops led by Moscow-trained Ho Chi Minh has shaken the frontier military balance in this frontier region.

A French communiqué said the forces which captured Dongkhe had not been completely identified, but there was to official claim that Communist Chinese troops had participated in the action. Instead French sources at Hanoi said the attackers came exclusively from Ho Chi Minh's troops.

U. S. officials do not expect Chinese Communist armies to make any direct appearance in Indo-China. But latest intelligence reports indicate that the Chinese Reds are training and equipping sizable numbers of Viet Minh rebels in China.

The basic explanation for U. S. willingness to send arms but not men to Indo-China is that this country cannot afford to spread its military strength too thinly as long as a major conflict threatens between east and west.

A U. S. mission is now in Indo-China surveying the military needs there and an American military advisory group will be sent to that country when the investigations are complete.

Stassen May Take Over From Matthews

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 20 — (P) — The Spokane Review says Navy Secretary Francis Matthews "is expected to resign shortly" and that the job has already been offered to Harold Stassen, the Republican presidential aspirant.

Stassen is reported to be considering the offer from President Truman, the newspaper said.

The review quoted an unnamed "prominent figure in the business world" who it said has just returned here from meetings in Washington, D. C., and New York.

Ashley Holden, political editor of the paper, wrote in a front page story today that Matthews is "bitter over the administration's repudiation of his recent speech advocating a preventive war with Russia."

Stassen, president of the University of Pennsylvania and a former Republican Governor of Minnesota, served in the Navy as an officer in World War II. He sought the GOP nomination for president in 1948 and is expected to do so again in 1952.

Union Head Is Attacked, Not Seriously Hurt

Chicago, Sept. 20 (P) — The president of a local AFL union was attacked by a mob of thugs last night as he walked home from a night shift. Police said the gunman, hiding in a parked car, blasted four shots at the union official, Steve Slaybor, 49, after he parked his automobile in a North Side Street.

Police Capt. Joseph Goldberg says Slaybor related he ducked under the car's dashboard when he saw a pistol muzzle pointing at him from a dark sedan parked across the street. One bullet struck Slaybor's keys in his trouser pocket and the slug was deflected. Officials at Illinois Masonic hospital said Slaybor suffered a left hip bruise "by the slug" that hit his keys.

Red Opposites Stiffening as Yanks Close in

Tokyo, Sept. 20 — (P) — Marines by thousands rained across the Han river today under heavy Red gunfire and struck within 10 miles of Seoul.

On their first images from the riverbank they drove across the 10-mile gap to the South Korean capital.

Powerful American tanks ried after them across the river, hurled shelled up sand bags and over rice paddies five miles later.

The first marine infantry unit waves hit the river, driving in amphibious tractors across the riverbed.

The marines first river crossing in darkness was reported by Red gunfire. The sea and sky darkened and a long-range naval shelling of the Reds from Inchon made good.

The tanks rumbled southward bringing powerful fire support. Leathernecks attacking hill positions outside Seoul.

Red Koreans were fleeing from this armored vanguard of 40,000 men Allied liberation.

American and their Communist enemy still were racing for possession of the capital. Communist troops rushed from the old east Korean front were streaming into Seoul along a secondary road from the southeast.

The Leathernecks were seen at Seoul from the northward. A slugging match in the city of 100,000 people seemed imminent.

First division marines out of southeast Korea for the surprise second front attack that began last Friday.

Chon, assaulted the Han River east bank eight miles west of Seoul as a dawn moon paled out in daylight.

The lead-out battalion had been first ashore at Inchon port 22 miles from Seoul.

It stormed across the river, shelled and shattered the points from waters off Inchon.

The big guns joined at Inchon by the 16th of the battleship Missouri, called on to lob shells 30,000 miles inland after the Reds hurled the earlier night-covered assault.

An army announced in Washington that South Korean marines had landed at Samchok on Korea's east coast directly opposite Seoul. Samchok is the terminus of a railway that crosses the peninsula here.

A spokesman said the landing occurred several days ago, but was not reported until the U. S. battleship Missouri landed at Samchok, within 100 miles north of the captured Seoul. There was no indication on the size of the force.

Ground artillery and warplanes pounded the Reds before dawn attack.

AP Correspondent Don Reed, veteran of many European landings in the second world war, wrote in an article the first wave. The enemy was off by the night attempt.

AP Correspondent Bill West second world war marine correspondent, who followed the attack started at 8:30 a. m. on Tuesday. Tracks with machine guns and steel rollers churned the yard-wide stream.

In three minutes the marines secured a 100-yard bridge. Heavy Red fire slammed the assault force.

Ninety minutes after the crossing, marines held dominant positions around the bridge on the river. The marines began reinforcements stormed to the river. The marines began Seoul.

"When we get to the north of Seoul there's nothing to it," said a Marine. Lewis (Cherry) Taylor, a Marine, said he was a Marine.

Formation of European Army to Start Soon

New York, Sept. 20 — (P) — An early start on the actual organization of a military force to defend Western Europe against Russia is foreseen by American officials here.

Their prediction is bolstered by the expected arrival tomorrow of the British and French defense ministers.

At the same time American authorities believe that negotiations reached by the United States, Britain and France on measures to relax occupation controls in Germany will lead to strengthening Western-German ties with the Allied powers and help clear the way for a German role in the projected new Allied army.

Secretary of State Dean Acheson is known to believe that the next round of Atlantic council talks will produce a final agreement among the 12 member nations on creating this unprecedented peacetime force.

He is also hopeful that it will move France nearer acceptance of the principle that German troops can be used along with American, British, French and other Atlantic power military units.

The council will meet again briefly within two weeks. Meanwhile Defense Minister Emmanuel Shinwell of Britain and French defense Minister Robert Schuman, details of the proposal and it is assumed, especially on the use of German troops.

They are expected to talk, also with Gen. George C. Marshall, President Truman's defense secretary-designate.

SEVEN FINED

Appeals to circuit court were expected.

Red Opposition

The Korean capital, Seoul, was expected to take it during the day. Another marine column was moving on the southwest bank of the Han river, only one mile from Seoul. The Leathernocks swarmed across the water barrier eight miles northwest of Seoul in amphibious tractors at dawn after being repulsed once in darkness. They quickly backed out a 400-yard wide beachhead under a hail of Red machine gun bullets. While the fighting raged, out into the sea, the Red fleet knocked out the heavy tanks and the bridgehead. The Red navy's tidal wave of tanks and armor plating led to Seoul. B-29s and fighter planes plastered communication lines within a 150 mile radius of Seoul, seeking to isolate the city. Its liberation after nearly three months of Communist occupation appeared at hand, possibly only a matter of hours. But the Reds apparently were not going to yield the city without a fight. Speeding truck columns of Red tanks were coming north from the old southeast Korea beachhead to join in the defense of Seoul. The Reds occupied the city of 1,000,000 normal population June 25, three days after they invaded the United Nations sponsored republic. Other Red troops were reported fleeing northward from the city, toward the parallel 38th boundary between Red and republican Korea. The marines crossed the Han in amphibious tractors soon after dawn. Naval guns of the Allied armada off Incheon poured a thunderous fire at the northeast river bank and aircraft and artillery pounded Red positions. The navy guns 20 miles away were called into action after Communist fire had turned back the first river crossing attempt Tuesday night. The battleship Missouri joined the naval bombardment group in the Yellow sea off Incheon to arch her 16-inch shells into the resisting Red island. The Mighty Mo raced around the Korean peninsula from the sea of Japan coast where she had softened up Pohang for reconquest by the Allied South Korean forces followed up the bombardment on the port city and completed the recapture Wednesday morning with no organized resistance encountered.

Move to Inaugurate a Jap Peace Treaty Is Welcomed by the West and All Asia

By DEWITT MACKENZIE, AP Foreign Affairs Analyst Washington's move to inaugurate preliminary negotiations for a long-delayed Japanese peace treaty will be received with relief both by the West — especially powers having eastern interests — and by Asia itself.

It's five years since the Japanese surrender, and this long military occupation of Nippon has been seized on by some Oriental countries as a basis for repeating the city of "imperialism" against the West. That is one of the major issues in Asia, and it has been the cause of numerous political upheavals that have followed the world war. Many Far Eastern countries of course have a very real fear of "imperialism," and in some cases with good reason. There has been exploitation of colonial peoples. Moreover, there has been an amazing awakening of the Orient during the past few years. This has been accompanied by a surge of nationalism which has resulted in the independence of many dependencies from the "mother" countries. It has been my privilege to see much of this transformation at close range, in visits to the Far East during the past generation. Naturally communism has been reaping advantages from this fear and hatred of "imperialism." Moscow has seized on the American occupation of Japan as an example of Yankee imperialism.

There is this situation so long as the occupation of Japan continues. The answer, of course, must be the framing of the long delayed peace treaty. Plans for the pact already have been under discussion at the current meeting of the Big Three foreign ministers (Britain, France and America) in New York. The United States takes the position that the treaty should be framed by the 13 world war Pacific allies, including Russia. However, Moscow has been insisting that the pact be drafted by the Big Four Pacific powers — America, Britain, Russia and Communist China. The question therefore arises whether, if Russia persists in this stand, the other powers shall go ahead without her. Washington has declined to cross that bridge until it is reached, but there have been strong indications that the non-Communist nations will proceed without the Soviet union if necessary, even though it produces fresh bitterness. Such a separate treaty would create the curious position of Japan being in a state of war with Russia. However, that apparently doesn't worry Japan, since her leaders favor pursuing this course.

General MacArthur, supreme commander in Japan during the five years, has stated that the occupation has achieved its aims. Responsible officials in Washington have made it known that America is prepared to urge a soft peace for Nippon. This would be without reparations or indemnity, and would have no restrictions on trade. Moreover, Japan would be permitted to rearm gradually, and she would be brought into the United Nations system of global peace and security. However, American forces would be kept in

UN Denies Seat to Red China

New York, Sept. 20 — (AP) — United Nations delegates buckled down today to the work of organizing their "catastrophe assembly" with a fight to seat Communist China only temporarily interrupted. The assembly's new president, Nasrallah Entezam of Iran, called the assembly back into session to set up the main committees, elect their officers, and choose seven vice-presidents. Entezam was elected late in the opening session yesterday, after India and Russia waged an unsuccessful fight to get the Communist Chinese government seated in the U. N. instead of the Chinese Nationalists. India said it would keep trying throughout the assembly.

Taking over the presidency from Carlos P. Romulo, Philippines foreign minister, Entezam said: "The United Nations now has to save the world from the catastrophe hanging over it. It is my hope that at the end of the assembly we can announce to the world the good news it is waiting for. In this hope, let us set to work."

The President, the heads of the six main committees and the seven assembly vice-presidents make up the steering committee. It decides in what order items should go on the agenda. Five vice-presidents come from the Big Five—the United States, Britain, France, Russia and China. The steering committee's first meeting may come this afternoon or tonight. After the assembly approves the agenda, the committee recommends, general debate begins. Brazil and the United States are listed as the first speakers. U. N. officials said the debate may not begin until Thursday morning. It may continue until early next week while the spokesmen for the 59 delegations present their governments' policy statements on outstanding issues. The United States won its first diplomatic victory yesterday against the unprecedented move by India asking the assembly to seat what India called "new China" in place of the Nationalist Chinese government now based on Formosa.

Tomato slices spread with a mixture of mayonnaise and blue cheese may be broiled and served as an accompaniment to steak or chops for a company meal. The country by consent, and she would lose Formosa and Okinawa. In short, Japan would be getting off very lightly, compared with many other peace settlements. Still, five years of military occupation is considerable punishment.

Gets 20 Years for Assault on Officer

Marion, Sept. 20 — (AP) — A Memphis negro, William Price, has been given a second 21-year sentence for assault on a police officer. A jury found him guilty and fixed the maximum sentence yesterday for the shooting of Arkansas State Trooper Bill Gordon, paralyzed from the waist down by a bullet on Aug. 27, 1949.

Last March, Price received a similar sentence for an attack on Deputy Sheriff George Powers of West Memphis. The two officers had stopped an automobile at West Memphis in a routine investigation. Price was identified as the passenger, who shot Gordon and attacked Powers. Gordon has returned to work with the state police, but in a wheelchair at Little Rock headquarters.

Conferees Speed Tax Details

Washington, Sept. 20 — (AP) — A senate-house committee polishing details of a tax increase drove toward completion of the task today after revising upward to $5,000,000,000 the annual revenue they expect it to bring in. Approval late yesterday of a 10 per cent withholding tax on corporation dividends completed the measure except for a few technical details. The conferees called another session today to put on the finishing touches.

Quick house and senate approval are expected to send the bill to President Truman before the end of the week. The revised estimate of the additional revenue the bill will produce came as a result of late changes and a new and higher appraisal of the amount that will be brought in as a result of the proposed boost in individual income taxes.

The withholding levy, aimed at persons who dodge or forget to pay taxes on corporation dividends, calls for no new taxes. But it is expected to stop a gap through which slips by treasury estimates some $190,000,000 a year.

Other minor changes made in the bill yesterday are designed to pick up additional millions. Congress may quit with a firm understanding that it will return

Bright Meteor Explodes, Jars Town

Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 20 — (AP) — A meteor flashed through the sky just west of here early today and apparently exploded in the air, jarring an area from Paducah, Ky., to Memphis, Tenn.

The Illinois Central railroad dispatcher in Paducah said reports from all along his line to Memphis told of a jar of an explosion. He said a railroad signalman at Covington, Tenn., 40 miles north of Memphis, told of seeing a ball of fire in the sky getting larger and larger, then exploding. The IC dispatcher's account was related here by Fred Denton, Tennessee Central dispatcher who said the IC man called to ask if there had been an explosion.

At Memphis, 220 miles southwest, the Shelby county state highway patrol sent six cars racing north of the city. The county radio officer said one car reported the meteor hit in the vicinity of Hatchie bottoms, a semi-swamp area between Memphis and the Millington naval base, about 20 miles away. This report was not confirmed.

A Murray, Ky., William Barnett, a filling station operator, reported a piece of the meteor fell on his farm nine miles east of Murray, near Wildcat creek on Kentucky lake. He took the object to the west Kentucky town. Observers said it was about the size of a man's head.

A report of the sky flash was given in Memphis by American Airlines Capt. H. J. Garman, of Dallas, Tex. Garman had just landed a DC-6 with 41 passengers from Washington. "We sighted that thing about one-thirty (a. m., CST) some 50 miles east of Nashville," Garman said.

"I was flying at 18,000 feet and it looked as though it came right across our nose. I tell you, I never saw such a brilliant flash of light before. No, it wasn't a clear light. It seemed to be burning with an orange, yellow and blue flame."

to work — possibly right after the November elections — to act on a "second installment" bill including an excess profits tax to take the profits out of war.

The two bills together might increase 1951 taxes by $12,000,000,000. Both measures would apply also to part of 1950 income of individuals and corporations.

There Is a Cycle in Korea That Ravages of War Can't Disturb — the Season Changes

By HAL BOYLE

Taeegu, Korea — (AP) — Nature has turned a corner in Korea. The fortunes of war here may ebb or flow by what congress votes in Washington or the factories do in Detroit or how many fresh troops the United Nations can raise to fill the bloodied ranks still spread so thinly on the high eroded hills.

But the eternal cycle of the seasons goes on undisturbed. And summer is now marching into autumn in response to a rhythm older than either the hatreds or loves of mankind.

Every living thing pulses to a new beat. There are still a few hot days but the deadly heat of August is gone. No longer does the harsh sun suck water from the very bones of soldiers toiling in the mountains and cause them to faint up the slopes. The air holds a hint of October.

The final rains are falling. They have brought a last bright surge of color to the paddies where the ripening rice bends in rippling pattern, and every midwest American boy who sees them feels sick for the wheat fields of home. For the winds make just such widening waves through the crops that grow in the prairies he remembers.

There is a silent and invisible race going on between the ripening grain and the struggling armies.

It is less than a month until harvest time, but enemy troops still hold the southwest provinces which are the great rice basket of Korea. And unless the enemy is driven out much of the crop may spoil ungathered, a disaster which could cost more lives by starvation than have been lost in battle. To the Koreans the outcome of this race in the southwest means more right now than the recapture of Seoul.

For peace and real self-security are only secondary dreams to millions here for whom the threat of an empty rice bowl is a lifelong nightmare.

But this drama of potential famine is still merely an interior fear, generated by man's ability to foretell his future well being by estimating his potential food supply.

The eye cannot catch it. It is swept only by the lushness of a land beautiful beyond belief at present — a land where the year is at its peak. Late blooming flowers spread their petals to catch the waning power of the sun, apples redden in the orchards, and the delicate rice plants nod heads suddenly too heavy for their frail stems. Great clouds float serenely over the blue Sentinel Hills at dusk. And the peasant girl looks shyly at the peasant boy.

The earth has given its best and is getting ready for a long sleep. It cares not more whether men waste or use its wealth than it does whether these same men dance in glee together upon its hills and spend their blood and breath seeing which can hold the highest ridge. It has done its job.

But men, in the mists of war, cannot share the joy of the fruit autumn of the land. They regard the beauty around them with alien eyes. They don't feel it belongs to them and therefore they see it but dimly. They aren't here for lovelessness. It only makes them more lonely.

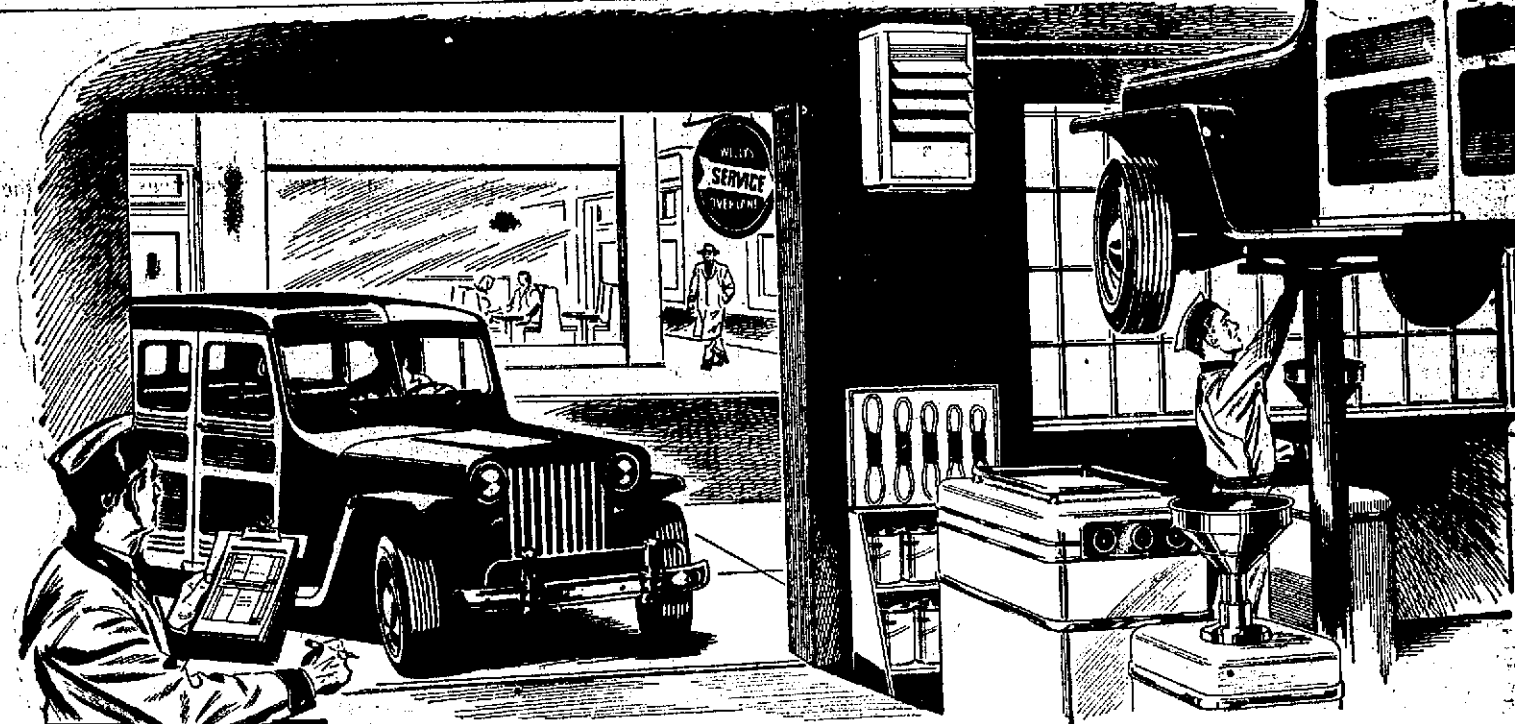

At twilight I flew through a darkening Korean sky. Before us a river wound in silvery peace into a distant mist and lights began to gleam like fireflies in the far villages.

"It may be beautiful," said the pilot, "but if someone gave me one hundred thousand acres of it I would give it right back to him for a one way ticket home."

Taft Hurls Expected Charges

Washington, Sept. 20.—(P)—Senator Taft (R-Ohio) today accused the Truman administration of "appealing the Communists" and of helping to build Russia's military might.

The Ohio lawmaker, chairman of the senate Republican policy committee, also suggested that appeasement of the Reds is the surest way to bring about World War III.

And he asserted that the Chinese Communists have been assisted "even more by the friendly cooperation of the Far Eastern division of our state department" than they have been by Russia.

Taft's statements came after W. Averell Harriman, President Truman's special adviser on foreign affairs, had said that Taft's voting in congress some times has been in line with "Communist objectives."

Harriman called indirectly for the defeat of Taft in his bid for re-election and declared the most charitable thing that can be said about the Ohioan "is that he knows not what he does."

Taft had no comment on Harriman's speech to the American Federation of Labor in Houston, Tex., yesterday—a speech in which Senator Ferguson (R-Mich.) said obviously must have had advance approval by Mr. Truman.

Taft's charges against the administration were contained in his weekly newspaper column prepared for Ohio voters. Released today, the column was distributed to newsmen the day before Harriman's speech and there was no indication Taft had any advance information regarding Harriman's remarks.

"Communism has always been a threat to the American people," Taft declared, "but the present military strength of Russia is largely the result of the foreign policy of the Roosevelt and Truman administrations."

He added that the two Democratic administrations followed policy at the Yalta and Potsdam conferences "which placed Russia in a dominating position in central Europe from which they can successfully threaten the liberty of Western Europe and of the United States."

Both administrations, Taft declared, have displayed a "sympathy for communism." He said Secretary of State Acheson's policy of "contemplating surrender of Formosa" and "recognition of the Chinese Communists" was only reversed when the Korean war occurred. Then Taft said: "Now, however, President Truman's rebuke of General (Douglas) MacArthur makes it uncertain what our policy is regarding the further spread of communism."

Seeks to Ban Political Appointments

Washington, Sept. 20.—(P)—The American Bar association (ABA) showed forward today a proposal which backers claimed would lessen the effect of politics in selection of federal judges.

ABA's house of delegates, legislative body of the 42,000 lawyers, set as a special order of business the consideration of a resolution requiring that appointments to the high federal bench be made only to candidates who have served 15 years as practicing lawyers or on other benches.

Harold J. Gallagher, ABA president, declared last night that the federal judiciary has fallen under one-party domination in the past 17 years of Democratic administrations.

The trend, Gallagher said, "is a reversion to a spoils system policy." Of nearly 200 judges appointed by the White House in that time, only eight have been Republicans, Gallagher told a meeting of ABA's judicial administration section.

He said that 75 per cent of all federal judges now are appointees of the Democratic party, and added: "No one party, Republican or Democratic, should predominate so overwhelmingly."

"There have been too many occasions when judges have been selected because of political weight was attached to the political desirability of appointing them than to any thing else," the ABA president said.

Retired Supreme Court Justice Owen J. Roberts was scheduled to give his views to the house of delegates today, although it requires special consent to grant him the floor.

Associate Justice Tom C. Clark of Texas, one of President Truman's two most recent Supreme court appointees, shared the platform when Gallagher condemned the one-party domination of the judiciary.

Clark told ABA that judicial reforms are imperative if the American system of impartial justice for all individuals is to measure up to the challenge of "alien systems" of government.

But Clark's remarks on the selection of judges were largely limited to state courts, and in most states a majority of judges are elected, not appointed.

DOROTHY DIX Happiness

Dear Miss Dix: My mother and I have had an argument about happiness and we wish you to settle it. I think that happiness consists in personal freedom, in being able to come and go as you please. In doing as you like without having to consult the wishes of any one else. In keeping yourself as free as all ties as possible. Believing in myself with a family. There will be no wife keeping tab on my movements. No children on whom I would have to spend my money. My mother says that happiness is only to be found in having some one dependent on us, in our feeling ourselves necessary to some one else's happiness and will being, and in our doing some congenial, constructive work. Which of us is right?

ARTHUR

Answer: I think that your mother is right. Personal liberty is, of course, a highly desirable blessing, but too much of it can become a curse. The most miserable people in the world are those who are absolutely free because the only reason that they are free to come and go and do as they please is because no one cares where they go or what they do or if they ever return or not.

Freedom is Lonely

If you would be free you must walk alone, and that is a dreary thing to do. We must have companionship to put meaning and pleasure into everything we do. The most exquisitely cooked meal lacks flavor, the most delightful journey turns into a bore, if we have no congenial companion to share it with. To get pleasure out of a book or play we must have someone to discuss it with, and so no lonely life can be a happy life, and if you find the freedom you seek you will find it dead-sea fruit in your hands.

No man lives into himself alone. We must have others to share our joys and our sorrows. Empty are our triumphs and our successes if there is no one to rejoice with us and be proud of us and give us the dear, intimate flattery of being proud of us that is sweeter to us than all the plaudits of the multitude. And only those plumb the deepest depths of sorrow who grieve alone, who, in their dark hour, have no breasts to weep upon, no one whose heart breaks with theirs in sympathy.

The happy people are those like your mother who have found the contentment we all crave in service to others.

Dear Miss Dix: It is true that no man loves a fat girl and that a girl has to have a string-bean figure in order to have dates I am a little overweight. Must I go on a diet in order to be popular with the boys?

JANE

Answer: I am afraid that I can not give an authoritative answer to this question, Jane. What a man sees to admire in a rack of bones I'm sure I don't know, but there is no arguing about taste, so there you are, and observation shows that the young women who look like incipient cases of tuberculosis do seem to have the edge over the plump maidens. However, there are exceptions to this rule and occasionally you will run across a man of sense who is looking for a wife who shows that she is hale and healthy and will take an interest in cooking, to one who it takes no prophet to foretell will be nothing but a doctor's bill to her husband.

Furthermore, there is this to say: if plumpness is a drawback before marriage it is an asset after marriage for it indicates not only that a woman is a good cook and a good housekeeper and one who takes a proper interest in food, but that she is good natured and easy going, all of which are virtues which endear her to her husband.

Dear Miss Dix: A young married man and I have been desperately in love with each other for several years. We are both honest and honorable, and we have fought this love until we are both mental and physical wrecks. He wants to go and tell his wife all about it and ask her to set him free. What do you say?

New York, Sept. 19 — The company called Mills Industries, Inc., formerly known as Mills Novelty company, is the foremost manufacturer of the gambling machine known as the one-armed bandit which has been at the bottom of so much official corruption and gangsterism for many years. The machine itself, of course, is an innocent as any deck of cards or pair of dice, except as otherwise provided by law in most of the territory of the United States. It is supposed to give gum. If the operators don't make it give gum, can the manufacturer be blamed? Mills Industries, Inc., owns, or did own at its latest information, 78 per cent of Soundies Distributing Corp. of Delaware. The date of its information is Jan. 3, 1945, and the source is a credit agency dealing strictly in this type of information. However, inasmuch as I am about to discuss certain financial interests of Jimmy Roosevelt, who, with the assistance of the first lady of the world, is campaigning for the governorship of California, the time is appropriate even though changes probably have occurred since then.

Twenty per cent of Soundies distributing Corp. was owned by Globe Productions, Inc., controlled by James Roosevelt.

"This subsidiary leases films to the operators of machines purchased from Mills Industries, Inc." The report continues. R. C. M. Productions, Inc., another Mills subsidiary, incorporated 1941, California law, 80 per cent owned by Mills Industries.

Incidentally, 1941 was about the time that Jimmy and the Mills people were jointly promoting, with typical Hollywood dignity, a venture in ten-cent movies viewed through a machine on the order of the juke-box. The report says R. C. M. Productions Inc., was promoting master negatives for "panoram" machines manufactured by thepanoram company.

So now where are we? It comes to this: Jimmy got up a movie company called Globe Productions to make movies to be shown in machines manufactured by Mills. This Globe company owned 20 per cent of a Mills subsidiary organized to distribute the films bought from Mills. Make you a little dizzy? I don't see how you can simplify it.

Suppose we just come to an understanding that Jimmy R. and the Mills outfit were very close business associates and that the slot machine business, always in need of friends in politics, never had had one in the White House itself.

Now I will try to depict for you a tasty brochure turned out in the fall of 1940 to celebrate the debut of panoram in the Blossom and Florentine rooms of the Roosevelt Astoria, N. Y. The Hollywood party came first. The Waldorf gala was yet to come when this booklet was printed. Its cover reads: Spinning Reels presents Panoram, New York premiere, Waldorf-Astoria, Oct. 21-22. The next page says: Sixteen Rogers, the famous Panoram girl, will be hostess at Mills open house, Sunday, Oct. 20, at the New York Soundies' preview. Smorgasbord.

Page four: Picture of girl with lot much on in a sort of kooch posture. Cut-line says: Carmen Danlonio, latest Hollywood dance sensation, in a scene from Jungle Drums, a Mills "panoradisc." Now we begin to go to town. There are eight pictures of Jimmy and several pictures of slot machine dignitaries and movie people.

"We went to Hollywood," the print says, to unveil panoram. We went to Hollywood to show soundies for the first time, the three-minute films with sound, automatically played for a dime. We gave the most glamorous city in the world a touch of the old mill spirit, that magical something which, when once fled by an outside object, changes its complexion then and forever. They said we would be lucky to have 100 people at our press party. But in swarmed 5,000, the biggest party ever held in Hollywood. A thousand operators, service men, planters, trained and motored across the country for this historic preview. Fred Mills, leader of the Mills Club, held out a heavy hand of greeting and Jimmy Roosevelt, as great a trouper as ever took a curtain call, hosted a night through with the skill and eclat of America's number one showman."

Skiping a few pages we come to a touching symbolic reference to the fruit that whirls by the eyes of the sucker on the wheels of the one-armed-bandit. There is a photograph of a great heap of oranges, plums, cherries and — lemons! The language below it said this was

The FORMER MISS FREY

By Edwin Rutt Copyright 1950 by NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: The former Miss Frey, whose marriage to Peter Flood has not been entirely successful, was placed in charge of Frey & Company, an advertising agency, under terms of her father's will. Dan Reagan, one of the executives, tells that the marriage is a complete failure and that she is a "nervous wreck." He also tells that she is a "nervous wreck" and that she is a "nervous wreck." He also tells that she is a "nervous wreck" and that she is a "nervous wreck."

HE gazed disapprovingly at the slim, black-frosted back of Jenn who was still unaware of her sister's presence. "Want to ask them to join us?" Dan Reagan asked.

"No, I'd rather she didn't see me," Ede said. "It might hurt Jenn's feelings. She's probably considering a golden moment." She frowned, toying with the stem of her cocktail glass. "This is off the record, Dan, but I don't think all of my troubles are going to be confined to business."

Jenn and Hamilton Grieve left after one drink, with Jenn's careless laugh sounding above the soft tinkle of the piano as they departed. Soon afterwards Reagan took Ede home in a taxi.

In the lower hallway the butler met her with messages from Jeff and Jenn. Both had phoned announcing their intention of being out for dinner. Mr. Jeffrey, the butler said, was dining at his club. Miss Jennifer had not stated where she was going.

Ede had dinner with the preoccupied and almost inarticulate Myron. She tried to take her youngest brother apart and find out how he ticked. Myron's monosyllables were discouraging in the extreme. But she did learn one thing. Myron professed himself satisfied with the status quo. He liked his job in the agency; he didn't want to do anything else. He was quite content, he said, to let matters take their course.

"You don't seem to have any too much ambition," Ede told him bluntly.

Myron smiled, a shy rather-dismaying smile. "Don't you worry about me, Ede," he said. "I'll do all right."

Perhaps he would at that, Ede thought. She knew that he did his work creditably enough. She knew that the other people at the agency liked Myron. And certainly, during these trying weeks he had given her less to think about than Jeff, with his fits of sulking and nervousness; than the restless eager Jenn. She decided to let Myron alone. He was more or less the sleeping dog of the family.

Ede went up to her room directly after dinner, promising herself a quiet evening. At 9:30 the butler tapped on her door.

"Mr. Melbourne has been downstairs for over half an hour," he informed Ede. "He insists on seeing Miss Jennifer. I told him she was out, but he wanted to wait. He seems upset, Miss Ede."

She found Tommy Melbourne in the drawing room and Mr. Melbourne was distraught. His broad shoulders were encased in an impeccable dinner jacket, but there his resemblance to a gentleman about to embark upon a gay evening ended. An angry flush dyed the clear golden skin of Tommy Melbourne's cheeks and his wheat-colored hair was slightly awry.

He rose with a jerk as Ede entered the room. Tommy looked at the floor, a little sheepishly. "I didn't mean to have you bothered with it, Mrs. Flood."

"It's no bother. Is it about summer?" And Indiana's John Zuger, who practiced forward passing with an old tire as a target, remarked: "I've already had a Goodyear."

One Minute Sports Page

What's the basis for the new midwestern rumor that the Cubs would like to land Lou Boudreau as their field manager in place of Frankie Frisch? A southern scout argues that Maryland's football team is overrated because it doesn't have a great quarterback.

Wonder if that means the Old Liners are great at every other position. Shamus O'Brien, one of Joe Louis' sparring partners, has just received notice to report to his draft board.

And Mal Whitfield, the record matching half-miler, already is in the near east after being recalled to duty with the air force.

Ed Collins is really enjoying the football Yanks' advance tick. "I wish the best he has had since he has been in pro football. It still doesn't assure any record crowds."

These items from assorted college publicity departments should boost the sale of grains of salt: Marving (Red) Hester, line backer on the Georgia scrub team, came out of the season's first real scrimmage and told a friend: "I was blocked eleven times on the first three plays."

"When someone asked Illinois' Johnny Karras what he does in his spare time, Johnny said: "Pose for pictures — at least three a day."

The table decoration at a Hollywood breakfast for 100 given by the mills house organ, spinning reels.

The invitation to the New York party at the Waldorf says the Waldorf has a reputation for "exclusiveness" but don't let that word bother you.

Payout in Cotton Loop Is Delayed

By The Associated Press

Rain forced postponement of the Cotton States playoff game for the second consecutive evening Tuesday night.

Natchez and Hot Springs will try again tonight to play the last game scheduled for the Mississippi city.

After they get in the remaining game — tonight or later as the case may be — they'll go to Hot Springs to finish the best four of seven series.

Each team has one game in the final series, which started after Pine Bluff and Monroe were eliminated in the opening rounds.

Highlights About New Income Tax

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Sept. 20 — (AP) — There are a few highlights about the new income tax increase.

It ranges from 20-12 per cent on people in the lowest income brackets to 11-12 per cent on those in the highest.

But — this increase won't hit you all at once. The full increase will be applied only to your 1951 income, not your income this year.

On your 1950 income only one-quarter of the increase is applied. For example, say you're in the lowest bracket now and the increase on you will be 20-12 per cent.

When it comes time to settle up in full on your 1950 income, you'll find that the increase is only one-quarter of 20-12 per cent.

But in 1952, when you settle up on 1951 income, you'll find your tax has been raised 20-12 per cent on your whole 1951 income.

This sounds complicated and a reader's first impression is probably something like this: "What a headache I'm going to have when I make my tax return on 1950 income."

Not so. Most people will do as they've been doing for years: They'll get a receipt from their boss on the tax withheld from them during the year. Then, without any figuring of their own, they'll turn it into the tax collector, together with a simple form that they must fill out.

He'll check it over to see that it's right. If they've been over-taxed, he'll give them a refund. If they still owe some tax, he'll notify them.

Then there are those who use the so-called 1040-short form. Although they don't figure out their tax, they find it in the table on the back.

They'll do the same when — before midnight, March 15, 1951 — they file their tax return on 1950 income. They'll do nothing differently but — the figures in those tables, because of the tax increase, will be a little higher.

And then there's the third group, as in the past, the people who must figure their own tax. They'll do exactly as in the past. The only difference will be in the percentages.

This will give an example of how the tax will be increased on 1950 income only one quarter of what it will be on 1951 income.

Jones, a single man, has a net income after deductions of $3,000. That has been his salary for several years and will be for sometime.

In 1950 when he made his return on 1949 income — has tax was $409.

In 1951 — when he makes his return on 1950 income — his tax will be $428.

But in 1952 — when he makes his return on 1951 income — his tax will be $468.

Or take Smith, who claims four dependents.

Tom Erick, a demon rescue worker until recently, failed in the clutch again. Chicago's Carrasquel nicked him for a single and Gus Narhos, the former Yank, doubled him to third. With two out Nelson Fox blasted a triple to center to drive in the tying and winning runs.

The Yanks had gone ahead 3-2 on Joe Dimaggio's 31st homer and Yogi Berra's 24th four-bagger, the latter's a two-run blow. Chicago Southpaw Bob Cain yielded only four hits.

In Detroit where Red Rolfe reshuffled his lineup, the Tigers' spirits soared. Hoping to get more Charlie Keller, Pat Mullin and Dick Kryhoski to replace V. Wertz, Hoot Evers and Don Kollowitz. The change worked.

Keller, the ex-Yankee, was making his first start in a lineup after invaluable pinch-hitting duties. He answered the bell like an old firehorse, powering two homers, two singles and driving in five runs. Mullin blasted out a homer and double. Kryhoski whacked out two singles.

Laborites Beat Off Opposition

London, Sept. 20 — (AP) — The Labor government took a renewed grip on Britain's political reins today after beating down an almost-successful opposition attempt to force a new election.

The vote was too close for comfort, however. The government mustered a margin of only six — 300 to 800 — in thwarting a Conservative bid to unseat it on the issue of steel mobilization.

The crucial ballot was taken at the house of commons last night on a motion by Conservative Leader Winston Churchill. In effect it asked the commons to go on record as opposing the government's taking over of Britain's steel industry next Jan. 1.

Parliament passed the nationalization bill last year over bitter Conservative opposition. But in the new parliament elected last February labor's majority was cut to the bone.

Political observers predicted that Prime Minister Clement Attlee's regime would do its best to retain power at least until spring, despite its slim voting margin over the combined Conservative-Liberal opposition.

Several informed sources indicated the soft-spoken Labor chief-in-planning a new election early next year, after steel nationalization and Britain's big armament program get under way.

Urging his motion, Churchill challenged the government's right, on "so slender a margin," to complete its steel program, "knock the other half" of the nation about "and ride roughshod over them."

The Conservative leader said Attlee, by his decision to go ahead with the nationalization, "has not only fomented national discord for party purposes but is placing an obstacle in the whole steel organization which may be very serious in the swift re-equipment" of our defense services.

Emphasizing that parliament approved the nationalization act a year ago, deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison retorted that Churchill had "formed a conspiracy to stop constitutional procedure."

"This is the new power of veto," he declared.

exemptions — himself, wife and two children — and makes $5,000. The tax on his 1949 income was $432, on 1950 income it will be $452, and on 1951 income, it will be $520.

Meanwhile, starting Oct. 1, your boss will hold a little higher tax out of your pay. This is to keep you as much as possible on the pay-as-you-go basis.

American Flag Race Gets Closer

By MURRAY ROSE (Associated Press Sportswriter)

The American league had a brand new race going today with a bunch of fast-aging players.

New York, Boston and Detroit were only a half game apart with only 12 days to go in the tense battle for World Series loot.

The pacesetting Yanks fell within a whisper of the runners-up last night by losing to Chicago 4-3.

Detroit belted out Philadelphia, 12-4, in a day game and Boston was rained out in Cleveland to set up the tie for second place.

So here's the way the three teams stood going into today's three-fronted action.

New York ..... W L GB
Boston ..... 90 53 -1
Detroit ..... 89 53 -1.2

Today it was New York at Chicago, Philadelphia at Detroit and Boston at Cleveland, the last a doubleheader.

Yankees' firing brought near disaster to New York, New Hope for Detroit and rest for Boston's rubber-armed relief ace, Ellis Kinder.

Besides losing a game they almost had won, the Yanks temporarily lost the services of Vic Raschi, their 20-game ace. The crack right-hander, who pitched an inning of relief last Sunday to save a game against the Browns, was injured by a line drive in the right leg.

Tom Erick, a demon rescue worker until recently, failed in the clutch again. Chicago's Carrasquel nicked him for a single and Gus Narhos, the former Yank, doubled him to third. With two out Nelson Fox blasted a triple to center to drive in the tying and winning runs.

The Yanks had gone ahead 3-2 on Joe Dimaggio's 31st homer and Yogi Berra's 24th four-bagger, the latter's a two-run blow. Chicago Southpaw Bob Cain yielded only four hits.

In Detroit where Red Rolfe reshuffled his lineup, the Tigers' spirits soared. Hoping to get more Charlie Keller, Pat Mullin and Dick Kryhoski to replace V. Wertz, Hoot Evers and Don Kollowitz. The change worked.

Keller, the ex-Yankee, was making his first start in a lineup after invaluable pinch-hitting duties. He answered the bell like an old firehorse, powering two homers, two singles and driving in five runs. Mullin blasted out a homer and double. Kryhoski whacked out two singles.
